Cows.

During the hot weather of August the flow of milk is apt to fall of considerably. and it is difficult afterwards to bring it up again. Bran and spout-feed are usually Two Hundred and Twenty-Nine. Total Expenses, per Session of Five cheap, and can be used to great advantmuch milk-feed in the water every day as the cows will drink. It pays in the manure, in the increase of milk, and in the improved condition of the cows. If you have any green corn, now is the time to feed it liberally. If very succulent, let it wilt a little, and if very large and coarse, and consequently rather deficient in nutriment, let the cows have enough corn-meal to make the fodder as nutritious as the best pasture grass.

Hens in Place of Dogs.

There is hardly a family that does not throw away enough table scraps to keep at least half a dozen hens, and many that keep a nuisance in the shape of a dog, keep a missance in the shape of a dog. BIROS AND INSECTS. - When the bird is no longer present to arrest the propagation of the insect the equilibrium is destroyed; the insect multiplies, deyours the harvests and leads the way to famine. The value of nutritive substances destroyed by insects, foots up to millions; it equals three times the amount of the land tax. In vi w of all this we organize for the destruction-of insects: no, for that of the birds. Man creates misfortunes for the sake of repairing them. He breaks up the nests and kills the birds in order to raise myriads of caterpillars.

The Female Countenance. There are certain particulars in which the female face is really a cheat, taking women in detail. What sweetness, what tenderness, what modesty, what delicacy in the handling of unpleasant facts, what sense of mystery, you can hardly fail to see in the face of many an ordinary pretty woman. Yet, if you take the rule, is the average young woman kinder, more thoughtful, nay, is she even cleanlier, than the average young man? There is a great deal to be said for the negative, a very great deal indeed. Compare the young woman whom you see in streets and public conveyances, in the morning and evening going to or returning from employment, with the young men I THE THIRTEENTH ANNUAL SESSION declare, the fact has forced itself on my senses, that the young men are the cleaner and better-kept animals. As for tenderness and thought-taking, though every form of male waiting and hand service is to me utterly hateful, I would rather, if I must be nursed, have Corporal Trim at my side than the ordinary woman. The reader may safely assume, large as he may think the assumption, that I have present to my mind all that is to be said in the way of extenuation or explanation here; but the fact remains, that by the majority of men, in the majority of cases, the female countenance is found a beautiful mask. -The St. Paul's

Sentenced to Marriage.

A case recently tried before the Clonmel (Irish) Assizes was brought to a singular and novel termination by the presiding Judge. The parties in the case were a young man and young woman, both of whom claimed possession of a rural property, one by virtue of an ancient lease, and the other under a will. They were in court for the purpose of giving their testimony, when a bright idea occurred to the Judge, who interrupted lature in 1832, it has experienced uninterrupthe case to say:-"It just strikes me that there is a

The young lady, on being interrogated, blushed, and said she was quite willing to marry the plaintiff. The latter, on being asked if he would wed the young woman, gallantly responded, "Most undoubtedly." The judge remarked that doubtedly." The judge remarked that doubtedly."
